

Competitor Information

Name

Division / Gender

Final Score

Rules

All participants are expected to treat other competitors, judges, spectators and other persons present with courtesy and respect. If a competitor is found to display unsportsmanlike conduct during the event, they may be asked to leave.

The following rules are for events using the following format:

- Competitors may use whatever equipment is generally accepted in bouldering including climbing shoes, chalk, toothbrushes, crash pads, and helmets.
- Competitors must begin a problem with their hands and feet on the marked starting hold(s) unless otherwise noted.
- If a problem has two or more starting handholds, competitors must use both starting holds.
- Competitors must climb to the end of the problem using only the marked holds and features, and without external physical aid. Verbal assistance is permitted.
- Competitors may work individual moves on a problem. These will count as attempts.
- If a competitor falls without reaching the first hold the failed attempt will count on their scorecard.
- If a technical problem occurs (e.g. hold spins or breaks) competitors may return to the ground immediately to retry without penalty. Competitors who continue climbing after a technical incident will forfeit the opportunity to retry without penalty.
- When a climber uses a hold or feature that is not marked as being a part of the problem, the ascent will not be given any points.
- To receive points for a problem, the marked ending hold must be matched and controlled.
- Circle top five scores before submitting card to judges.
- Features are off unless otherwise marked.
- All climbers must have active spotters.

Competitor Information

Name

Division / Gender

Final Score

Rules

All participants are expected to treat other competitors, judges, spectators and other persons present with courtesy and respect. If a competitor is found to display unsportsmanlike conduct during the event, they may be asked to leave.

The following rules are for events using the following format:

- Competitors may use whatever equipment is generally accepted in bouldering including climbing shoes, chalk, toothbrushes, crash pads, and helmets.
- Competitors must begin a problem with their hands and feet on the marked starting hold(s) unless otherwise noted.
- If a problem has two or more starting handholds, competitors must use both starting holds.
- Competitors must climb to the end of the problem using only the marked holds and features, and without external physical aid. Verbal assistance is permitted.
- Competitors may work individual moves on a problem. These will count as attempts.
- If a competitor falls without reaching the first hold the failed attempt will count on their scorecard.
- If a technical problem occurs (e.g. hold spins or breaks) competitors may return to the ground immediately to retry without penalty. Competitors who continue climbing after a technical incident will forfeit the opportunity to retry without penalty.
- When a climber uses a hold or feature that is not marked as being a part of the problem, the ascent will not be given any points.
- To receive points for a problem, the marked ending hold must be matched and controlled.
- Circle top five scores before submitting card to judges.
- Features are off unless otherwise marked.
- All climbers must have active spotters.